

At the Jena University Hospital (JUH), Institute of Occupational, Social and Environmental Medicine (Director Prof. Dr. Astrid Heutelbeck), applications are invited for a

Endowed Professorship for Epidemiology in Occupational Medicine (W2)

The person to be appointed (m/f/d) should represent the field in research and teaching. It is expected to be particularly well established in the epidemiological field of medical prevention and rehabilitation in the work process to maintain employability and the context factors influencing employability, as well as to integrate itself scientifically with quantitative methods into the research foci of the Medical Faculty 'Ageing and age-associated diseases' and 'Sepsis and infection'.

Requirements include university degree in medicine (including a respective board certification), psychology, natural sciences or comparable disciplines, doctoral thesis, postdoctoral thesis (Habilitation) or equivalent scientific qualification as well as teaching and leadership skills. The candidate should have an outstanding track record in publications and extramurally funded research.

The Professorship is initially endowed by institutions for statutory accident insurance. An evaluation will follow after five years and will determine the basis of the continuation of the professorship at JUH.

The JUH and Friedrich Schiller University Jena are committed to increasing the number of women in research and teaching. Therefore, JUH and the University actively encourage qualified female scientists to apply. In case of equal qualifications, applicants who have a disability will be favoured over the others.

Please submit complete application documents (CV, list of publications, list of lectures and courses taught, copies of certificates and degrees, list of third-party funding) online at <https://berufungsportal.uniklinikum-jena.de> by 08.05.2020, addressed to the Representative of the Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, Prof. Dr. Orlando Guntinas-Lichius.
